Page s maintenance of daily clinics is mentioned in Article II of this series (The Margin of Error in the Diagnosis of Mental Disease), where also are reprinted the conclusions of the writer s papers on Errors in the Diagnosis of General Paresis and Anatomical Findings in Senile Dementia, both of which studies are wholly dependent on this system of daily clinics. The following is taken from the writer s discussion (with minor errors corrected) of Dr. Elbert M. Somers paper before the American Medico-Psychological Association at Atlantic City in 1909, on The Value of Staff Conferences in State Hospitals. Dr. Southard. -- I would like to say a word about the economy of this conference system, because lately I have been enjoying the fruits of the daily staff conference at Danvers Hospital in a review of autopsy findings in cases that have been through the daily clinics. I wrote to Dr. Cowles, formerly of McLean Hospital, to learn whether he had any data relating to the time at which this system was adopted, and he has written me a letter concerning the development attained at the McLean Hospital. He assigned the origin of such conferences originally to Germany, to Professor Ranke, who held a seminar for the discussion of historical matters by his pupils. That system has, of course, now spread into a number of our universities. In 1889, if I remember the date, the conferences were introduced at...
