Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Satirist, C The pieces which compose this volume were written subsequent to the publication of Columbia s Wreath: - Some of them were originally inserted in the newspapers; and, others have never before been in print. In this form, they are now presented to the public as the most recent compositions of the author. He has endeavored to diversify the collection by a variety of style and sentiment; so as to render appropriate the motto, which he has selected for the title page. The scene of the Satirist is laid somewhere; the characters alluded to, it is believed, do exist; the time occupied by the action is now - the rules of Aristotle, Horace, Boileau, c. to the contrary notwithstanding. The events as related, did occur some time or other: or, at least, they might have occurred. Should any persons conceive themselves unkindly treated in the poem, they are respectfully requested, by the writer, to blame their own conduct and not his satire. In the first Canto, the poet has not even spared himself; for he deems it his undoubted privilege To see all others faults and feel his own The author begs leave to return his most grateful acknowledgments to his numerous patrons; and, confidently trusts that this production of his leisure moments, may prove to them and to the public generally acceptable.
